

RATHER COOL.—A Mr. Faylor, of Cohoes, N. Y., one of the Central American's passengers, saved, was in the water ten hours. He was flailing about, on a plank with another man, a New Yorker, and states that after having been in the water ten or fifteen hours, with scarcely a hope remaining of being picked up, his companion addressed to him the following query in the most nonchalant tone:—"Well, Taylor, where are you going to put up to-night?"
